Every age in history is defined by an event that ushers in something radically new. Join GMF’s second Triennial Transatlantic Leaders Retreat: Leading Forward with Agency, Trust, and Service in Chantilly, France, from May 22-24, 2020, and identify the types of leadership, learning, and action needed to ensure that our liberal values continue to thrive.

GMF’s Transatlantic Leaders Retreat convenes every three years to discuss upcoming challenges to the Transatlantic Relationship, define the priorities of GMF’s alumni engagement, and chart the course of GMF’s 3,500 alumni network with a brand new action plan.

Future of Democracy – With populist movements highlighting the weaknesses in our democracies, policy and civic initiatives are urgently needed in order to address the mobilization of extremist political parties across Europe and the United States.

Citizen Diplomacy – Mounting skepticism about the benefits of international engagement has fueled isolationist sentiment across national governments and their constituencies. In an increasingly interconnected world, it is imperative that leaders understand and translate the impact global trends have on their communities.

Identity and Inclusion – In order to utilize the creative and competitive benefits of diversity, it is imperative that leaders are equipped with inclusive acumen and leadership skills necessary to ensure cohesion and equitability serve their constituents.

Business and Society – Attitudes toward corporate responsibility are changing in regard to social and political issues. As such, business leaders must recognize the importance of acting beyond traditional frameworks, and increase their efforts to be leaders of society through their influence on the cultural and economic spheres.
